* "The Castaway," Miss Rives' new novel, is an entralling romance of Byron's life, but it is more; it is a reversal of public opinion, an appeal for justice for one whose "life's life was lied away."

No man has been more misunderstood, and more maligned than Byron. This novel is of great timeliness, in view of the recent publication of the journals and letters known as the "Hobhouse Papers."

"The Castaway" shows Byron in the new light revealed by these papers, though the author no doubt arrived at her conclusions independently, and evidently had been a thorough student of Byron literature long before these documents saw a printing press. The novel will serve more widely the ends of justice than the journals, since it will reach a far larger public. It is an extraordinary study of the titanic poet, and will doubtless have a much more permanent place than any of the many stories in which Byron has heretofore been made to figure.

Miss Rives' novel contains the most profoundly sympathetic, vivid and true portrait of Byron ever drawn. The artistic selection of materials from the life of the poet and the dramatic use of them are beyond praise. A woman has succeeded better than any one else in giving us the real Byron. The tale in itself is moving, pathetic, fascinating from beginning to end.

* This appreciation of "The Castaway" was written by CALVIN DILL WILSON, author of "Byron—Man and Poet," etc., etc.

THREE are all kinds of ways of expressing appreciation, but there is a certain directness about the following letter from one of the largest booksellers in the West that is very convincing. It is quoted exactly as written to us.

"We are having a phenomenally large sale of 'When Wilderness Was King,' and in fact, both your new books* are meeting with a big success here. The people seem to think they are getting their money's worth when they buy these books both from a literary and an artistic standpoint."

*The other book is "Robert Cavelier."

Have you everything you need to assist your own sale on these books—imprint circulars, posters, placards, etc.? We have an extensive line of advertising matter, and are ready to fill your requirements.

NOTES IN SEASON.

L. C. PAGE & CO. have just brought out Charles G. D. Roberts's new book of animal life, "The Watchers of the Trails," publication of which was delayed until the 1st inst., owing to the unusually large advance orders that necessitated the printing of a second edition before publication day.

HARPER & BROTHERS publish to-day Dr. Emil Reich's work, "Success Among Nations," in which he examines the causes of the success of certain nations and endeavors to determine which nations are likely to be the successful nations of the future; an original and amusing novel by Robert W. Chambers, entitled "In Search of the Unknown;" also, "The Gems of the East," by A. Henry Savage Landor, in which the author describes his discoveries and adventures in the Malay Archipelago. They will publish on the 9th inst. a collection of stories by Mrs. Mary E. Wilkins Freeman, entitled "The Givers." The title-story was first published in Harper's Magazine as "The Revolt of Sophia Lane."

DODD, MEAD & CO. announce for early publication "The Poet's Corner," another of Max Beerbohm's portfolios of eccentric and original caricatures, in which he sets off the characteristics and failings of certain modern poets; "The World of Fashion and of Letters at Bath Under Queen Anne and the Georges," by A. Barbeau, which treats very fully and very entertainingly of the last days of the seventeenth century; also, "Behind the Footlights," by Mrs. Alec Tweedle, an amusing book of dramatic gossip and personalia about modern stage celebrities. They will publish in the early fall a new novel by Marie Corelli, the title of which has not yet been made public. It is said to be a story of pure love and faith, and to be more on the lines of "Thelma" than any book which the author has written since that work.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just published a story entitled "Richard Gresham," dealing with the fortunes of a young man with a New England conscience which compels him to give up his natural career in life to make money enough to pay back a considerable sum which his father was supposed to have dissipated. The book is written by Robert Morss Lovett, who has hitherto been known in literature through his books written with William Vaughan Moody. They have also just ready "Love Among the Ruins," a new novel dealing with the love of Yeoland and Flavian, by Warwick Deeping, author of "Uther and Igraine," with illustrations by W. Benda. They will publish shortly a paper-bound edition of Jacob Riis's biography of "Theodore Roosevelt the Citizen."

D. APPLETON & CO. will publish this month "The Story of the Red Cross," by Miss Clara Barton, the president of the society since its organization, more than twenty years ago, whose recent resignation will add interest to the work. They will also publish this month a book which is said to be an actual view of us seen through Chinese spectacles. It is to be entitled "As a Chinaman Saw Us." The author is said to be a gentleman of title who resided in this country from 1892 until 1902. Although he came ostensibly to investigate the railway systems, he entered American society and was the guest of well-known persons in Washington, Newport, New York, Chicago and other cities. His book is made up of letters written at the time to a friend in China. They were secured for publication by a well-known missionary, who has translated them.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk **, and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price. ■

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Abbott, Edwin A. Paradosis; or, "in the night in which he was (?) betrayed." N. Y., Macmillan, 1904. 23+216 p. 8°, cl., **$2.60 net.

Abernethy, Julian Willis, ed. The southern poets; selected poems of Sidney Lanier, Henry Timrod, Paul Hamilton Hayne; with biographical and critical introductions and explanatory notes. N. Y., Maynard, Merrill & Co., 1904. c. 78 p. 16°, (Maynard's English classic ser., no. 241.) pap., 12 c.

Acetyline gas; how to make and use it. N. Y., Spon & Chamberlain, 1904. 62 p. il. 12°, pap., 25 c.

Adams, Andy. A Texas matchmaker; il. by E. Boyd Smith. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1904. [My.] c. 5+355 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Lance Lovelace, a pioneer Texas ranchman, is the matchmaker in the latest story, by the author of the "Log of a cowboy." Tom Quirk, the hero in the above story, is also the principal character in the present novel. The scene is Las Palomas, and Tom is supposed to recount his own adventures, after the vigorous fashion of a cowboy; he tells how he fell a prey to old Lovelace's matchmaking propensities, of his brief and stormy courtship and attempted elopement with its disastrous consequences, and other incidents of ranch life worthy of narration.

Alden, Mrs. Isabella Macdonald, [“Pansy,” pseud.] Dorris Farrand's vocation. Bost., Lothrop Publishing Co., [1904. My.] c. 5-335 p. il. D. cl., †$1.50.

Mrs Alden has drawn an interesting picture of a deeply religious, but very human girl, who seeks her vocation amid the social environment of college and church. She is helped in her quest by a fellow student, a youth of little cultivation, but high ideals, to whom she also gives much-needed help in matters pertaining to good taste and social deportment.

Allbutt, T.: Clifford. Notes on the composition of scientific papers. N. Y., Macmillan, 1904. 8+154 p. 12°, cl., *$1 net.

Answers to examples contained in Jocelyn's "High school and academic algebra." N. Y., Amer. Book Co., [1904. My4.] 39 p. S. pap., 10 c.

Appleton's dictionary of Greater New York and its neighborhood. 26th ed., rev. to date. N. Y., Appleton, 1904. c. '72-'04. 356 p. il. maps, 16°, pap., 25 c.

Ashmore, Otis. A manual of pronunciation for practical use in schools and families; containing a careful selection of words in the English language most commonly mispronounced; with their pronunciation as given by the best authorities in England and America. Bost., Ginn, 1904. 8+67 p. D. cl., 30 c.

Ten of the leading lexicographers and orthoepists of America and England have been selected and quoted on the words where authorities differ, so that the student may see not only the preferred pronunciations but the secondary forms as well. In many words of more than one authorized pronunciation, as abdomen, alternate, bronchitis, etc., there is overwhelming testimony in favor of one form, while in others, as economical, acoustics, etc., the authorities are more nearly balanced. All this is clearly summed up in tabular form and shows the student at a glance just what company he keeps.

Bardeen, C: W:, comp. Later Regents' questions in arithmetic, 1892-1901. Syracuse, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, 1904. c. 8+9-65 p. 16°, cl., $1.

Barnes, Ja. The son of Light Horse Harry; il. by W. E. Mears. N. Y., Harper, 1904. [My.] c. 4+243 p. il. D. cl., †$1.25.

Colonel Robert E. Lee, of Confederate fame, was known in his youthful days as "the son of Light Horse Harry." Mr. Barnes, the author of "For king or country," etc., has made an instructive boy's book out of Lee's career from his West Point days through the Mexican war, in which he served with great honor. An opening chapter, "The Lees," briefly tells of his ancestors, and a concluding one, "The end that crowned," of the end of his career and death.

Barry, J: D. Mademoiselle Blanche: a novel. N. Y., J: Lane, 1904. c. '99, '04. 5+330 p. D. (Canvas-back lib. of popular fiction.) bds., 75 c.

Mademoiselle Blanche is pictured as an acrobat, who was charming Paris with her marvellous athletic feats when introduced. An episode of her life is her marriage to Jules Le Baron. The last scene in the pathetic story is the dramatic ending of the little acrobat's stage career.

Barton, S: Marx. Elements of plane surveying, (including leveling.) Bost., Heath, 1904. c. 9+255 p. O. hf. leath., $1.50.

"The primary object of this work is to give a brief treatise on plane surveying, adapted for a short course in colleges, or as a preparatory course in technological institutions. It has been the aim of the author to make clear points that, in his fifteen years' experience, both in the class-room and the field, he has found troublesome to beginners. In dealing with the fundamental principles and operations he has endeavored to answer 'simple questions that confound.' "—Preface.

Battell, Jos. Ellen; or, whisperings of an old pine. 2d ed., rev. and enl. v. 1. Middlebury, Vt., American Publishing Co., 1903. c. 14+613 p. il. O. cl., $2; mor., $3.

"Ellen" was first published in one volume in 1901, and noticed in P. W. of July 20, 1901, [1538.] The book is a series of conversations between Ellen and an old pine tree, on many scientific theories, generally accepted as correct. The second volume of "Ellen," containing a review of the remaining books of geometry, together with the review of the undulatory theories which appeared in the first edition, will be published shortly.

- Child, Francis Ja., comp. English and Scottish popular ballads; ed. from the collection of Francis James Child by Helen Child Sargent and G: Lyman Kittredge. [Cambridge ed.] Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1904. c. 31+723 p. por. O. cl., $3; hf. cf., Special India pap. ed., $5.
- The original version of "English and Scottish popular ballads" consisted of ten parts, which made five large volumes, and contained 305 distinctive ballads, each of which was accompanied with an introduction, a bibliography and an account of parallel versions of the poem. In some instances as many as nine renderings of a poem were given. The present volume, with about five exceptions, contains the same number of ballads given by Mr. Child, with briefer notes, but his words are retained wherever possible. The numbering of poems is uniform with that of the first edition. Includes a glossary which is based on that of the larger work. The editors are Helen Child Sargent, daughter of the compiler, and Professor George Lyman Kittredge of Harvard University.
- Churchill, Winston. The crossing. N. Y., Macmillan, 1904. [My.] c. '03, '04. 5+598 p. il. D. cl., +$1.50.
- "Richard Carvel" was based on the Colonial history of America. The theme of "The crossing" is largely the peaceful conquest of the great Louisiana territory by American citizens shortly after the Revolutionary war. The crossing of the Ohio River into this territory and the introduction of American social and political ideas into the Indian and French territory is worked into a story told in first person. A young boy, reared in the woods comes in contact with Daniel Boone, Rogers Clark, Andrew Jackson and many other historic characters. The fine characters among the men and women who settled our great west are worked into a story of ingenious plot.
- Cody, Sherwin, comp. A selection from the world's great orations, illustrative of the history of oratory and the art of public speaking. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1904. [My28.] c. 32+518 p. S. cl., *$1 net.
- These selections include speeches of Demosthenes, Cicero, Savonarola, Bossuet, Mirabeau, Chatham, Burke, Grattan, Curran, Sheridan, Fox, Erskine, Patrick Henry, Daniel Webster, Lincoln, Gladstone, Ingersoll, Beecher, and others. General introductions to each author are furnished by the compiler and editor.

- Comstock, J: H: and Anna Botsford. How to know the butterflies of the Eastern United States; with 45 pls. from life reproducing the insects in natural colors. N. Y., Appleton, 1904. [My.] c. 12+311 p. il. D. cl., **$2.25 net.
- Brief but comprehensive descriptions of butterflies from remote parts of our country; although the species represented are mostly from the eastern section, a few important exceptions are made. The work, which is in three divisions, gives first a general account of the structure, clothing and metamorphoses of butterflies, and shows their relation to other insects. This is followed by a classification of species. Lastly the peculiarities of the skipper family are defined. Designed for nature students, and as an introduction to advanced study of the subject.
- Connecticut. Constitutional provisions, general statutes and session laws, relating to telegraph and telephone corporations, in effect Jan. 1, 1904. N. Y., Amer. Telephone and Telegraph Co., 1904. c. 15+5-55 p. O. cl. (Not for sale.)

Connolly, Ja. B. The Seiners. N. Y., Scribner, 1904. [My.] c. 6+314 p. il. D. cl., +$1.50.

A novel, which is a new departure in sea-fiction, by the author of "Out of Gloucester," who has heretofore confined himself to the writing of short stories. The most interesting incidents occur aboard Gloucester "Seiners," or fishing boats, although Clancy's boarding house also figures in the story, and a sailor's love affair is almost as interesting as are his deeds of prowess. Another innovation is the presence of women characters who have never taken part in Mr. Connolly's other tales.

Constant, Louis Constant Wairy. Recollections of the private life of Napoleon, by Constant, premier valet de chambre; tr. by Walter Clark. Akron, O., Saalfield Publishing Co., 1904. c. 3 v., 2 pors. pls., 12°, cl., $3.75; hf. leath., $6.

Coolidge, Emelyn Lincoln, M.D. The mothers' manual: a month by month guide for young mothers. N. Y., A. S. Barnes & Co., 1904. [Ap.] c. 3-263 p. S. (Woman's home lib., no. 2.) cl., **$1 net.

Dr. Coolidge has won a wide reputation during her connection with the Babies' Hospital of New York. She has gathered in this volume the results of years of study and practice. It does not conclude when the infant has learned to walk and talk, and so has acquired a measure of independence. The book is carried to the seventh year of the child, telling everything about dress, diet, exercise, etc., a mother wants to know.

Davitt, Michael. The fall of feudalism in Ireland; or, the story of the Land League revolution. N. Y., Harper, 1904. 17+751 p. O. cl., **$2.50 net.

Tells the history of an Irish movement which sprang without leaders from the peasantry, namely the "Land League," which owed its origin to the efforts of the people to regain the land confiscated under the Cromwellian settlement. These struggles continued for a period of over 250 years. Character sketches of O'Connell, Parnell, and other celebrated Irish reformers are given. Anecdotes and legends bearing on the subject are also included. The great Irish famine in the early part of the 19th century, and its far reaching consequences, with other issues of the Irish question are discussed, as is also the action of the American Land League.

A special feature of this index is an analysis by topics of the material on educational subjects contained in the contributed articles and discussions published in the Educational Review, v. 1-25, January, 1891, to May, 1903. All signed articles are given both author and subject entries. Book reviews are entered alphabetically under the authors of the books as well as after the names of the writers of the reviews. The titles of books are printed in italics. Editorial notes are entered under subjects, and discussions under authors and subjects. Volume numbers are printed in antique type, and paging is indicated in plain figures. The compiler is head reference librarian in Columbia University.

Eggleston, G: Cary. Evelyn Byrd; il. by C: Copeland. Bost., Lothrop Publishing Co., 1904. c. 438 p. D. cl., +$1.50.

"Evelyn Byrd," is the third and last story in a trilogy of novels which deal with the action of the Virginians (men and women), in the Civil War. In it the author has endeavored to show the endurance and heroism displayed by the sons and daughters of Virginia in the latter part of the Rebellion. Some of the scenes are at Wyanoke. The interest centres in the love affair of Evelyn Byrd and Colonel Kilgariff. "Dorothy South" and "The master of Warlock" were the titles of the first and second books which preceded the present story, in the sequence of tales.

Modern electricity: a practical working encyclopedia: a manual of theories, principles and applications: a text-book for students, apprentices, artisans, engineers: 2 special wiring diagrams. Chic., Laird & Lee, 1904. c. 4+355 p. il. por. S. cl., $1; seal leath., $1.50.

Every formula is explained in the simplest manner possible, and the processes of arriving at results have been carefully demonstrated mathematically. Numerous questions and answers, together with practical examples, worked out in every detail. The many devices, machines and apparatus used in the different branches of electrical science are described and illustrated in detail. In addition, there are numerous tables, which will prove of exceptional practical value. Meters, systems of measurements, power stations, methods of transmission and distribution, lighting, electro-plating and metallurgy, telegraphy, wireless telegraphy, telephony, X-rays and radium are a few of the different subjects treated. A new phase of the subject is embodied in the chapters devoted to practical methods and estimates for the construction of electric railways.

Hewlett, Maurice. The queen's quair; or, the six years' tragedy. N. Y., Macmillan, 1904. [My.] c. 8+505 p. D. cl., *$1.50.

From the time Mary Queen of Scots becomes a widow in France and returns to Scotland and finally loses her throne there—during six stormy years of intrigue and wickedness—the story runs. Although the author does not pass over her errors or mistakes, he shows an evident sympathy for her, the picture he presents of her being that of a warm-hearted, passionate woman seeking and demanding love, and often meeting with disloyalty and deception from those about her. The fight around her throne by the various factions is vividly portrayed.

Lane, Elinor Macartney. Nancy Stair: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1904. 10+385 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Nancy Stair, as described by the author of "The mills of God," is one of the most charming characters in recent fiction. According to the story, which is supposed to have been told by her father, Lord of Stair, Nancy was a poetess, whose verses were favorably commented upon by Robert Burns and Mrs. Opie; Lord Stair, however, values his daughter's beauty of character more than either the mental attainments or physical beauty for which she was renowned. Interesting incidents of Nancy's history are her courtship and marriage. Nancy's mother's love story is also told, and for a while murder lends a gruesome interest. The time is from 1768-1788.

The object of this bibliography is the collection of data rather than critical analysis. The purpose is also to give reference only to such articles as are reported to contain separate determinations of aluminium or some of its salts, and to omit the very large number which according to report contain iron and aluminium together. In exceptional cases analyses are cited which report mere traces of aluminium. For information on the subject the files of the London Chemical Society, The American Journal of Pharmacy and other scientific periodicals have been consulted. The analyses are in five groups which are indexed.

The main object is to bring to the attention of engineers an accurate and rational method of estimating the loss of heat from steam pipes and boilers covered with any of the well known non-conducting materials now on the market. This method worked out long ago by Péclat seems to have been generally overlooked in this country, perhaps because no translation of Péclat's work existed.

The cities of Babylon referred to are supposed to have been built 3000 years before Christ, and the ancient civilizations of Central America do not date earlier than 500 years after Christ. In relation to the subject the author treats of geological formations, of the arch and column on pyramids and palaces in America, of the architecture of civilized races, ancient temples, and Toltec cities, and of the wonders of the buried cities of Honduras, and the ruined cities of Peru. He locates also what is believed to have been the site of the Garden of Eden.

Powell, Frances. The By-ways of Braithe. N. Y., Scribner, 1904. [My.] c. 3+361 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Braithe Manor on the Hudson, built by the first American Braithe, in exact imitation of the ancestral English home of the Braithes, is the scene. The novel is notable for striking situations which occur in the By-ways, a hidden labyrinth of passages, which were built after the fashion of those that made the English manor famous. The interest centres in the honor of the Braithes and in the love affair of a daughter of the house. By the author of "The house on the Hudson."

The life of Lord Byron has been worked into a story by the author of "Hearts courageous." She has made clear to the reader his great gifts, his peculiar temperament, the injustice and lack of comprehension on the part of his relatives and the public that ruined his life and made him an exile in Greece, where he died fighting for the liberties of strangers. Byron called himself "a castaway," from which the book takes its title. Sheridan, Shelley, Beau Brummell and other noted men of Byron's day are characters in the story.

A biography founded largely on the diaries, notes and letters of Francis Parkman, and on information supplied by his sister, Miss Parkman. Mr. Sedgwick dwells particularly on the heroism displayed by Parkman, and endeavors to show how closely his life was interwoven with the lives of George William Curtis, Charles Eliot Norton, George Bancroft, Henry James and other makers of American literature, whose letters are included. By the author of "Essays on great writers."

Beavington Atkinson, Theophile Gautier, Lady Verney, Eugene Emanuel Viollet-le-Duc, Fred Whishaw, and other celebrated writers. Intended as a companion volume to Miss Singleton's "Japan."

Smith, Adam. Wealth of nations: a new and condensed ed.; with preface and introd. by Hector Macpherson. N. Y., T. Y. Crowell & Co., [1904.] 27+232 p. D. cl., *$1 net.

The present abridged edition emanated from a desire to make accessible to the general reader the epoch-making ideas of Adam Smith. The success of the "Wealth of nations" when first published, says Hugh McPherson, editor of the condensed edition, was largely due to the blending of theoretical exposition and historical illustration; with the lapse of time much of the historical matter has become obsolete. Hence this edition, in which the local and temporary element are omitted, making it easier for the general reader to apply the fundamental principles of the work to present day problems.

Taylor, Emerson Gifford. A daughter of Dale. N. Y., Century Co., 1904. [My.] c. 5+352 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

As the author of “A daughter of Dale,” is a Yale doctor of philosophy, and an instructor of rhetoric in the University, it is but reasonable to assume that Dale is a fictitious name for Yale; it is also fair to suppose that Barbara, the granddaughter of Professor Hare is a real personage; in fact all the characters represented appear to be real men and women. The interest centres in the action of Barbara, and that of her two lovers, who are contrasting characters in the graduate school, and rival suitors. Besides portraying the life of a university town, the novel demonstrates the perils that threaten the overzealous student.

Voynich, Mrs. Ethel Lillian Boole. Olive Latham. Phil., Lippincott, 1904. [My.] c. 337 p. D. cl., *$1.50.

The heroine is a young English girl—a trained nurse, who goes to St. Petersburg to take care of a man to whom she is engaged who is ill with pleurisy; the man belongs to one of the so-called "doomed families" of Poland, is a born rebel, actively engaged in the revolutionary movement against Russia. He and his friend a Polish medical student with the girl are the chief characters. The two men have both served terms in Russian prisons, and though quite young are broken down in health; they continue plotting and being hunted by the Russian government, some terrible pictures being given of the "inside" life of Russia. The marvellous resemblance between two step-sisters, the one a royal princess, the other supposedly the daughter of middle-class people, but really also a "daughter of Nijo"—Nijo being a prince of Japan, is the basis of the plot. Each of the sisters by an odd fatality loves the man to whom the other has been betrothed by the relatives. The ending of the story is quaint and satisfactory.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE Institut International de Bibliographie at Brussels has brought out a bibliography of economic and social science, edited by Dr. Ervin Szabó. The volume is entitled "Bibliographia Economica Universalis. Répertoire bibliographique annuel des travaux relatifs aux sciences économiques et sociales publiés par Jules Mandelló. 1. année, Travaux de l'année 1902. Redigés par Ervin Szabó." This work is based on the monthly record of economic literature published by Dr. Szabó since 1900. In 1902 Dr. Szabó classified the titles according to the Dewey system to meet the wishes of the Institut International de Bibliographie to publish the list separately for 1902, as the thirty-ninth issue of the Bibliographia Universalis. The list is particularly full in German and French titles; the next in point of fulness are the English, Italian and the Hungarian works. The Hungarian titles are also translated into French. Scandinavian, Dutch and Spanish works are not included. (21+170 p. 8°.)

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MISS BRADDON, (Mrs. John Maxwell,) now in her sixty-seventh year, is about to bring out a story of suburban life in the early Victorian period, entitled "A Lost Eden."

MRS. WILSON WOODROW, who is contributing a series of short stories to McClure's, is the pen-name of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, the wife of the well-known historian.

PROFESSOR GOLDWIN SMITH, referring to the widely-circulated report that he had prepared his autobiography and had already placed it in the hands of the publishers, writes to the New York Sun as follows: "I am neither writing nor intending to write an autobiography in the proper sense of the term. The events of such a life as mine cannot be worth recording. I may leave some reminiscences of men with whom I have conversed and things which I have seen, but I am not putting anything into the hands of a publisher."

THERE has been much discussion as to the identity of Auguste Sabatier, author of "Religions of Authority," (McClure, Phillips,) arising from the fact that there are three Sabatières prominent in the religious life of France to-day. Auguste Sabatier, the author of "Religions of Authority," is dean of the Protestant Faculty of Theology in the University of Paris and the author of "Outlines of a Philosophy of Religion." A second Sabatier, Paul, is the nephew of Auguste Sabatier and the author of a church history and the well-known book on St. Francis of Assisi. A third Sabatier is Armand Sabatier, no relation to the other two. He is dean of a scientific school in the University of Montpellier.

PAPER-COVERED EDITIONS.

FOR some years past the old fashion of issuing cheap paper-covered editions of noteworthy books of good sale seems to have lapsed; but it has now been revived by a leading and enterprising house, which has announced six volumes of standard and "live" fiction in twenty-five cent editions. The volumes in quality of manufacture do credit to the Macmillan Company and give a remarkable quarter's-worth. It is the plan of the house to confine the experiment this year to the six novels already announced, by way of test of popular demand and wholesome effect upon the trade. This experiment, which promises to be successful from every point of view, has an interesting bearing on the mooted question of the price of fiction.

Previous to the passage of the "international copyright" amendment in 1891, the cheap reprints based on a dime price had pretty nearly knocked to pieces the sale of fiction otherwise. It was not until after international copyright was assured and the piracy of current English novels stopped that the development of American fiction, especially in the shape of the "big sellers" requiring editions by the 100,000, had its renascence, reviving the successes of an early generation, when English fiction had not possessed our market, and "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "The Lamplighter," and "A Prince of the House of David" had success not less phenomenal than those of the leaders of to-day. The international copyright amendment, while it has been a benefit to the leading English novelists, has in fact precluded the lesser lights of English fiction from finding a market in America; and from libraries and from individual bookbuyers alike the demand for popular novels, especially those American in scene as well as in origin, has been something extraordinary. During most of these years, as has been wittily said, there were few Americans who hadn't a dollar to spare for the luxury of a new novel; but with the recent curtailment of profits and spending, the sale of the $1.50 book may be curtailed, and the present arrangement is intended to reach those who have a quarter to spend, but not a dollar, for such purposes.

Of course the danger of the paper-covered edition is that if issued simultaneously with the cloth edition, or soon after, it tends to limit the sale of the cloth edition, from which both author and publisher expect to reap their fair return. In some cases jobbers, retailers, or libraries have bought paper editions to rebind in more expensive and durable shape, and thus indirectly reduced the author's royalty and the publisher's profit. One publisher sought to provide against this difficulty by invoking the aid of the copyright law to prevent the rebinding of the paper-covered edition in a shape which made it a rival of the cloth-bound edition—but it was difficult to discern legal basis for this scheme, and we think it was not continued. It goes without saying that a novel issued originally at a twenty-five cent price would not give either author or publisher any margin of profit.

Under the present arrangements of the American Publishers' Association the so-called $1.50 novel as usually sold especially at the department stores at $1.08 has been practically a dollar book. It has always been to our regret that this situation was not frankly faced and a dollar novel on the net price basis made the general rule. By printing a paper-covered edition at the end of the year of protection the original edition has its fair chance to remunerate both author and publisher of a successful book adequately, and thereafter larger sales can be stimulated and the full harvest reaped by the issue of a cheap paper-covered edition. Of course the expectation of such an edition will naturally check orders from jobbers and retailers toward the close of the period of protection, and libraries will also be likely to curtail their orders for "the latest new novel" as demanded by all library patrons at once, to a minimum number of cloth-bound copies and await the expiration of the year to stock up further where a book has shown evidences of permanent popularity. This will be an effect not altogether to be deprecated, even from the booktrade point of view. Many bookbuyers will be the more likely to buy the book for their individual use when it comes in the shape of a good cheap edition, sufficiently well bound to outlast a fair reading use.

The experiment of the Macmillan house seems so far to have received the general support of the trade—despite some rumors of protest which seem not to be well founded—and the experiment will be watched throughout the trade with considerable interest.

THE retirement of Mr. J. W. Nichols from the secretaryship of the American Booksellers' Association should not pass without deserved recognition. To him more than to any other man is due the development of that organization; and while some features of his administration may be subject to criticism, his associates and the trade owe him thanks and appreciation for the results he and the organization have helped to achieve. Without pecuniary compensation from the Association itself for his work in and for it, Mr. Nichols has given time from his correlated business enterprise, the Consolidated Retail Booksellers' organization, freely and unstintedly, to this voluntary work. We trust the American Booksellers' Association will prove its right to permanency and continuing success—but it will not do so unless its members back up the efforts of their representatives with pecuniary as well as moral support.

"AMERICANIZED ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA" RESTRAINED.

JUDGE LACOMBE, of the United States Circuit Court of the Southern District of New York, on May 24 issued an order restraining the Tribune Association of New York City from printing, publishing, vending, etc., "The Americanized Encyclopædia Britannica," which The Encyclopædia Britannica Company, of 225 Fourth Avenue, New York City, claims violates its copyright. The Encyclopædia Britannica Company some time ago acquired all the rights in this country of A. & C. Black, of Edinburgh, to the original Encyclopædia Britannica, including a number of articles copyrighted in the United States. The so-called "Americanized" edition is published by the Saalfield Publishing Company, of Akron, O., and was offered as a premium by the Tribune Association. It is made up of eight volumes, instead of the twenty-four volumes of the original, and the Encyclopædia Britannica Company made the charge in court that this compression was the result, virtually, of cancelling and mutilating about two-thirds of the English work. The ground of the action was that the "Americanized" edition infringed a number of articles in the ninth Edinburgh edition, which had been copyrighted in America.

The "Americanized" edition also had a four-volume supplement which was supposed to bring the work up to date. D. Appleton & Co. claimed that these supplemental volumes were largely made up of appropriations from "Appleton's Cyclopædia of American Biography." The Appletons thereupon brought suit in the United States Circuit Court of New Jersey for infringement of copyright against the Werner Company of Akron, O., the American Newspaper Association of New York, and the Saalfield Publishing Company of Akron, O. In order to avoid further litigation, the suit against the Saalfield Publishing Company has just been settled in court by a stipulation in which the defendants agree not to print or sell any further copies of the offending work, to destroy all printed sheets, to destroy or melt the portions of the plates from which the infringing matter in the Supplement as it appears in the "Americanized Encyclopædia Britannica" has been printed, and to pay D. Appleton & Co. the sum of $2000 damages.

In the suit of the Encyclopædia Britannica Company against the Tribune Association a large amount of documentary evidence was introduced. When the case came into court, Judge Lacombe gave a restraining order. After the full hearing the judge confirmed the restraining order, and granted an injunction against the Tribune Association, which enjoins it from "printing, reprinting, publishing, completing, copying, executing, finishing, vending, advertising, or in any manner offering for sale or selling" any sets of the said alleged "Americanized Encyclopædia Britannica" containing any of the copyrighted articles specified in the bill of complaints.

IN MEMORY OF PATRICK FARRELLY.

At the meeting of the Periodical Publishers' Association, held May 18, the following reference was made to the recent death of Mr. Patrick Farrelly:

"Since our last meeting, the periodical publishing fraternity has experienced a very great loss in the death of Mr. Patrick Farrelly, one of the founders of the American News Company, and for many years its general manager.

"Mr. Farrelly was intimately known to the members of this Association, and a good friend to all of them. His suggestions were at all times most pertinent and valuable, backed, as they were, by an active experience of nearly fifty years in the news and periodical business. His kind and considerate nature endeared him to his associates and his business acquaintances.

"The Periodical Publishers' Association wishes to record its appreciation of the sterling worth of Mr. Farrelly, as a man and a business ally, and to express to the family and associates of Mr. Farrelly the sincere personal sympathy of the members of this Association. Therefore, be it

"Resolved, That this expression of our appreciation of Mr. Farrelly's well spent life, and service in the publishing interests, be spread in full on the records of this Association, and a copy be sent to the bereaved family."

FOREIGN CORPORATIONS IN NEW JERSEY.

A NEW law has just been adopted by the New Jersey Legislature, namely, Chapter 221, Laws of 1904, providing for the licensing and taxing of foreign corporations. Members of the trade interested in the State, especially members of corporations, are advised to comply with the new regulations.

HOTEL KEEPER MAY SEIZE DRUMMER'S SAMPLES.

JUDGE BURPEE, of Waterbury, Conn., has filed his decision in the city court of Waterbury in the case of the Royal Novelty Company vs. Mulcahy, giving judgment for the defendant to recover replevined goods and awarding damages of $1 and costs. The case involves the interesting point of law as to whether or not a hotelkeeper can seize a drummer's samples, the property of the company he represents. Proprietor Mulcahy, of the Broadway Hotel, of Waterbury, took this course in the case of a representative of the Royal Novelty Company that was stopping at his house. A transient of this kind, according to the law, is a guest and not a boarder, and the common law provides that goods of a guest can be seized. When Mr. Mulcahy took the drummer's samples the company recovered them in a suit of replevin. By Judge Burpee's decision the goods are the property of the hotel proprietor, and he also gets damages of $1 and costs.

THE ENGLISH BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE ASSOCIATED BOOKSELLERS OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND held its annual meeting at Stationers' Hall, on May 6, H. W. Keay, the president of the Association, acting as chairman. From the report presented it appears that the net system is being steadily extended, 3581 of the 8779 published last year having been put out as net books, or 531 more than in 1902. The president, commenting on this, thought that "net" books are easier to deal with because the public were beginning to learn that when they asked for "net" books there was no deviation in price, and they were just as well satisfied as before."

The efforts to get the Educational Supply houses to consent to a maximum discount on educational books for elementary schools have so far proved unsuccessful, as have been those of the members of the Library Association to induce the publishers to consider the advisability of allowing some discount off "net" books to the libraries. Speaking on the subject of discount to the libraries, one of the members present said: "Undoubtedly the free libraries have done a very great deal of good, but many of the libraries, especially in the provinces, were simply distributors of novels; that was not, he thought, the object for which free libraries were originally intended. The idea of a free library was to have valuable books of reference which were too expensive for people to buy for themselves, and not simply to be a mere lending library. No doubt reading novels is better than reading nothing; in the same way drinking tea might be said to be better than drinking whiskey or beer; but what would the tea merchants say if the corporation provided the tea for nothing? The same may be said with regard to soap, and other articles in daily use."

H. W. Keay was re-elected president, as were also the following officers: A. Denny and E. Hanson, vice-presidents; Calder Turner, hon. treasurer, and Edwin Pearce, hon. secretary.

BULLETINS OF A. L. A. COMMITTEE ON BOOK PRICES.

THE A. L. A. committee on book prices has issued Bulletins Nos. 4 and 5 on "Bookbuying," for April and May, respectively, as follows:

BULLETIN NO. 4.

The money paid for books by 206 libraries in a recent year was about $700,000. Of these, 125 spent less than $100 each. Only six college and three state libraries are included. All the libraries in the country spend for books annually over $2,000,000. Such a group of buyers, if united in purpose, can obtain proper concessions in the market.

For those who wish to file a protest against a certain bill now before Congress, with any member of Congress, the following is suggested:

"In the name of this library, I desire to enter a protest against Senate bill 5314, introduced by Senator Platt, of Connecticut, on March 30. It provides that the privileges of the free importation given to libraries shall be restricted to the case of those articles concerning which 'the holders of the American copyrights thereof, in writing consent to such importation.' This law is unwise because there are often occasions in which it is desirable to have both a foreign and an American edition of a book in a public library, and because frequently the foreign edition is more desirable than the American one, on account either of the character of the paper, binding, or price. There is a still more serious objection. It would make it almost impossible for a library to order a book in advance of publication. Frequently a book is announced on one side of the ocean or the other, months and even years before it is published, and before plans have been made to obtain an international copyright for it. It is impossible for libraries to know in advance what books will be copyrighted, and it would happen continually that a book which we had ordered from abroad would be copyrighted in the United States between the date of the order and the time when we receive the book. I trust that you will use your influence against this bill."

Publishers depend on library trade in issuing books not in great popular demand. For example, some of them have said it pays to issue any "nature book," as the libraries will always take enough to cover the cost. If librarians generally refrain from the purchase of new books, within the first year after issue, the value of their trade to publishers will become very evident. . . .

BULLETIN NO. 5.

Small libraries can buy at auction to great advantage. Of course not recent books, but the older ones of high class. Begin with those in New York and Boston. Write to Anderson Auction Co., No. 5 West 29th Street, New York, and C. F. Libbie & Co., 646 Washington Street, Boston, Mass., asking them to send you the catalogues issued by them covering the fields in which you are interested, stating that it is your purpose to begin buying books at auction and offering to pay for the catalogues if they cannot send them without charge. When a catalogue is received, check at once such titles as you wish to buy. Examine these titles carefully to identify editions, decide what prices the library can afford to pay, and send in your bids. One can offer from one-third to one-half of the published price for ordinary items and get excellent returns.

Write a letter about as follows:

Dear Sir: Please execute for me at your auction sale on _____ (date) Catalog No. _____ the following bids, Lot 235 Shakespeare, 6 volumes at 40 cents, Lot 433 Hawthorne, 12 volumes at 65 cents.

(Signature.)

Lot 235 in this case would cost you $2.40, as bids and sales are always made on single volumes in each lot. The auctioneer executes such orders without charge. The best time in the year for auction bargains is May.

Every library, however small, ought to possess a few of the best book lists to aid in book buying. All the books listed below are indispensable. Every community should have at hand information about all books in print, new and old, on any subject. Oftener it is wiser to buy the old and tried book than the new, unknown one. These book-lists, especially No. 10, tell about the best books. We designate those most needed, if funds for the purchase of all are not available, with a star.

1. *PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, $3 per year. Lists all American books and Many English. 2. *Publishers' Trade List Annual, with combined index, 2 v., $8. #### THE BOOKTRADE AT ST. LOUIS.

We have received word from the following firms who, in addition to those noted in our issue of May 21, are making book exhibits at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis:

A. C. McClurg & Co. installed last month an attractive exhibit of their publications in the Palace of Liberal Arts.

G. & C. Merriam & Co. have a large display in the Palace of Education, Block 7, aisle 1, showing samples of all the bindings of their International Dictionary, together with the various bindings of the regular edition of the "Collegiate Dictionary," etc. A bust of Noah Webster overlooks the display, which also includes a portrait of Dr. W. T. Harris, the founder of the firm, autograph testimonial letters from noted personages, colored plates, etc.

We should be pleased to hear from other firms making exhibits that have been overlooked by us.

AN INDEPENDENT PAPER MILL.

It was announced in Glens Falls, N. Y., on the 16th ult., that, as a result of the signing of the Lewis water storage bill by Governor Odell, the financial interests identified with Finch, Pruyn & Co. will immediately begin the construction of a mammoth wood pulp and newspaper mill which will be operated independently of any trade combination.

Finch, Pruyn & Co. have been for years one of the largest lumber concerns in Northern New York. They control practically all the spruce supply in the Adirondacks, outside of that owned by the International Paper Company. The company owns the water power on the Warren County side of the Hudson River at Glens Falls, but because of the decrease in the flow had deferred the building of the paper plant until the water storage question was settled.

OBITUARY NOTES.

FRED. COLLINS, for eighteen years in the old book business at No. 20 Brattle Street, Boston, died May 14. Mr. Collins was also well-informed on numismatics and dealt in coins and postage stamps.

GEORGE H. JONES, who for thirty-four years was a member of the Berlin & Jones Envelope Company, manufacturers of envelopes, New York, died May 24, at his home in New York City. He was seventy-nine years of age and retired from business about fifteen years ago.

COLONEL AUGUSTUS C. BUELL, author and engineer, died May 23, in Philadelphia. He was born at Norwich, N. Y., September 4, 1847. When the war broke out he went to the front and served until 1865. He then studied civil engineering and surveying, in which he was engaged until 1873, when he entered the field of journalism. In 1883 he became secretary to Charles H. Cramp, the ship builder, which position he held until about a year ago. Among his publications are "The Cannoneer," "Life of Paul Jones," and "Life of Sir William Johnson."

F. YORK POWELL, Regius Professor of Modern History at Oxford University, died May 8. Professor Powell was born in 1850, and was educated at Rugby and Oxford. After holding various distinguished positions he was appointed in 1894 to the position he held at the time of his death, succeeding Froude. His publications include "Early England Up to the Norman Conquest," "Alfred the Great and William the Conqueror," "Old Stories from British History," and "History of England to 1509." He was joint editor with Vigfusson of "Corpus Poeticum Boreale" and of an Icelandic Reader.

EDWARD JAMES DODD, for many years partner in the firm of Frederick Warne & Co., died May 7. Mr. Dodd was born at New Buckenham, Norfolk, Eng., and went to London at the age of seventeen. He was apprenticed to Messrs. Jarrold, of Norwich and London. Afterwards he joined the Routledge firm, Mr. Warne, one of the partners, being an old friend of his. When Mr. Warne retired from the Routledge firm in 1865 to establish a separate business, Mr. Dodd joined him in founding the firm of Warne & Co. in Bedford Street. In 1895 Mr. Warne gave up active business in favor of his three sons—Harold, Fruing and Norman Warne, Mr. Dodd retiring at the same time.

CHARLTON THOMAS LEWIS, lawyer and lexicographer, died at Morristown, N. J., May 26. He was born in West Chester, Pa., February 25, 1834, and was graduated from Yale in the famous class of '53. He held the chair of mathematics and later of Greek in the Troy University until 1862, when the institution ceased to exist. In 1864 he came to New York and engaged in the practice of law as partner of Samuel S. (Sunset) Cox. For many years he was counsel for the Mutual Insurance Company, and lectured on life insurance at Harvard, Columbia and Cornell universities. He was author of a "History of Germany," "Harper's Latin Dictionary," "Lewis's Latin Dictionary for Schools," "Lewis's Elementary Latin Dictionary" and "Love Letters of Prince Bismarck." He edited "Harper's Book of Facts," etc.

JAMES BOYD MARTINDALE, founder and president of the Martindale Mercantile Agency, with offices at No. 77 Broadway, New York, died May 17 at the home of his son, B. W. S. Martindale, in Brooklyn. Mr. Martindale was born in 1836 in Henry County, Indiana. His father was the Rev. Elijah Martindale, one of the pioneer preachers of that district. In 1857 he was admitted to the Indiana bar, and practiced in Indiana for several years, twice serving as State's Attorney. In 1855 he founded the mercantile agency in this city, one of the oldest institutions of its kind in the country. The agency also publishes "The American Law Directory." The body will be taken to Newcastle, Ind., for burial. Two sons survive him—W. S. Martindale, who is the vice-president of the agency, and George B. Martindale, its secretary. He has also four brothers living in Indiana.

A sixth volume, "Men of Mark," will be brought out next year.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE YOUNG CHURCHMAN CO., of Milwaukee, Wis., announces that its line of publications will hereafter be kept in stock by Edwin S. Gorham, 285 Fourth Avenue, New York.

THE CHELTENHAM PRESS, New York City, have in preparation an illustrated work on "The Negro," by Dr. R. W. Shufeldt, presenting a history and the present status of the negro in America.

THE EX-LIBRIS CLUB, Room 1011 Colonial Building, Boston, has in preparation a volume entitled "Booklovers, Bibliomaniacs and Book Clubs," by Henry H. Harper, illustrated with pen and ink drawings.

CHARLES SESSLER, dealer in rare books, 1529 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, will sail on the Cedric, June 15, for England and the Continent on an extensive tour in search of rare and choice editions.

E. J. CLODE, New York, has in preparation a novel by Bailey Millard, entitled "Lure o' Gold," the story of a mutiny in which the author gives a startling picture of what men will do in their lust for gold.

THE SHEPARD Book COMPANY, Salt Lake City, Utah, have just brought out a reprint of a rare book, long out of print, entitled "Brigham's Destroying Angel, the life, confessions, and disclosures of the notorious Bill Hickman, the Danite Chief of Utah."

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish in the fall a new volume of short stories by Miss Eleanor Hoyt, entitled "Nancy's Country Christmas," with illustrations in color. They have made arrangements with William Heinemann to publish an American edition of the Great Masters series.

F. A. DAVIS & Co., Philadelphia, have in preparation a volume entitled "Studies of the Human Form," by Dr. R. W. Shufeldt, illustrated with reproductions of photographs taken by the author. The work will appeal to artists, sculptors, artisans and craftsmen as well as to physicians.

MARTINUS NIJHOFF, 114 Fifth Avenue, New York, has on exhibition a fine manuscript Psalter of the thirteenth or fourteenth century, the bulk of which is written in the Provençal language. The manuscript consists of 255 leaves of vellum, richly illuminated with miniatures, initials and drawings, illustrating scenes from the Old and New Testaments.

L. C. PAGE & COMPANY will publish in the early fall "The Green Eye of Goona," a new detective story by Arthur Morrison, author of "Tales of Mean Streets," etc. The "Green Eye" was a magnificent diamond that was stolen and concealed in one of the bottles of a case of Tokay wine, and the story deals with the adventures encountered in tracking down each bottle in the case until the right one was finally discovered.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish in November Hall Caine's new novel, "The Prodigal Son," which will begin its run as a serial in the July number of Everybody's Magazine. They have also secured for early fall publication "The Table and How to Decorate It," by Mary Whipple Alexander. It is written in a style similar to that of the books on gardens and rugs published by this house, and is to be illustrated by the reproduction of forty-five full-page photographs showing tables set for guests.

THE FEDERAL Book COMPANY have taken over the books bound in cloth formerly published by Street & Smith, and have also secured the exclusive right—for several years—to publish all cloth bound editions of these books for the trade. The line includes The Boys' Own Library, (151 titles,) Boys' Popular Library, (64 titles,) The Girls' Popular Library, a carefully selected list of stories for girls by Alice Carey, Mary D. Brine, Mary A. Denison and other favorite authors of books for girls and a number of new and notable copyright novels.

HENRY CAREY BAIRD, of Philadelphia, on April 6 presented to Memorial Hall at West Point, the alma mater of his father, a portrait of Brigadier-General Henry Jackson Hunt, Chief of Artillery of the Army of the Potomac. The portrait was painted by T. Henry Smith, a well-known Philadelphia artist, and was accepted by the Academic Board, which passed a complimentary resolution to the donor. This is the third gift of the kind made by Mr. Baird to Memorial Hall, the others being a portrait of General George Gordon Meade and one of General Charles Ferguson Smith, both famous graduates of West Point.

ROBERT GRIER COOKE will publish shortly "Barclay Genealogies," compiled and arranged by R. Burnham Moffat. The book will contain an account of the history and descent of the New York family of Barclay, with its line of descent down to January 1, 1904, including the families of Van Cortlandt, Astor, Bache, Lispenard, Webb, Parsons, Schermerhorn and others, making over 1350 names of descendants of the Rev. Thomas Barclay, the first rector at St. Peter's at Albany, N. Y. The dates of birth, marriage, and death of each of the descendants are given, besides those of other Barclay and Barkley ancestors in various parts of the United States.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready in two volumes "The Dictionary of the Talmud," by the late Dr. Marcus Jastrow. This monumental work represents the devoted study of a life-time. It covers the Targumim, the Talmud Babli and Yerushalmi, and the Midrashic Literatures, or, in other words, all the Hebrew and Aramaic literature produced by the Jews from 200 B.C. to 800 A.D. It comprises in all 1750 pages. Dr. Jastrow had the satisfaction not only of completing the manuscript of his work, but of seeing the whole of it through the press, and only a few days before his death, which occurred on October 13, 1903, he made the final corrections to the proofs of the preface.

THE delegates of the Clarendon Press have taken over the series of geographical memoirs known as The Regions of the World, which is under the general editorship of H. J. Mackinder, and in future this series will be published by Henry Frowde. Two new volumes will be issued this year: "North America," by Professor Israel Russell, of the University of Michigan, at the end of this month, and "India," by Sir Thomas Holdich, in the early autumn. It is hoped that "The Far East," by Archibald Little, will soon be in the press. The three volumes which have already appeared are "Britain and the British Seas," by Mr. Mackinder; "Central Europe," by Professor J. Partsch, and "The Nearer East," by D. G. Hogarth.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have in preparation a work on the opportunities for young men entering the ministry to-day, entitled "The Work and Opportunities of the Ministry," to which Dr. Charles Cuthbert Hall, Dr. William R. Richards, Dr. Josiah Strong, Professor George A. Coe, Robert E.

Speer and others will contribute; also, "Missions and Modern History," by Robert E. Speer, a study of the bearing on Christian missions of some great events of the nineteenth century. They have just published a work on "The Philippian Gospel," by Dr. W. G. Jordan, Professor of Old Testament Exegesis in Queens University, Kingston, Canada; also, the sixth volume in Dr. Henry T. Sell's Bible Study of Text Books, entitled "Bible Studies in the Life of Paul," which covers the preparation, the journeys and the writings of the great Christian leader. They will publish in September "Doctor Luke of the Labrador," by Professor Norman Duncan, of the Washington and Jefferson University, Washington, Pa. Though the author has written a number of strong and exciting short stories, this is his first novel. It deals with the primitive fisher folk of Labrador and the coming of their champion to that rugged and isolated coast.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish on the 15th inst. "The Woman Errant," a new novel by the author of "The Garden of a Commuter's Wife," etc. Less a garden book than its predecessors, and more a novel, this new story reveals a growth in power which will gratify the admirers of the author's preceding work and will attract many new friends. One of its phases touches on a curious social phenomenon of the present day, which has become strongly marked, yet which is absolutely untouched hitherto in fiction—the challenge of the woman domestic by the woman errant. The knight errant of the Middle Ages has, it seems, a modern ectype. How does she bear herself, as she sets forth into the world? What are the qualities, human or feminine, which she brings to bear on those with whom she comes in contact? And what about the home ties, and the questions of competition and self-support? Just how do those noblest of feminine attributes, unselfishness and consideration for others, operate in mitigation of the harshness of the modern struggle for existence? These are some of the questions suggested by one phase of the story, the interest of which is not, however, centred upon a problem. They have in preparation for early publication three new books notable for a large number of fine illustrations in color. One of these will be "Venice," by Mortimer and Dorothy Menpes, with 100 full-page illustrations in color; the second will be "The Alps," described by Sir Martin Conway, with 62 full-page illustrations in color after pictures by A. D. McCormick; the third is "Holland," of which the text has been written by Beatrix Jungman, with 77 full-page illustrations in color. They will bring out in September a new novel by Gwendolen Overton, the author of "The Heritage of Unrest," to be entitled "Captains of the World." This is the first of a series of studies of modern American life and conditions of which there will be five or seven more.

BOOKS WANTED.

■ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

■ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.
